The sun is then said to enter the constellation Camer. At will, however, actually be in the constellation Gemini, and will not enter Cancer until in July. This is a somewhat confusing matter to beginners in a surrenemy and a brief explanation of the cause will be of interest to thom.

It is due to a westward movement of the Celestial Equator at its points of interestion with the Eciptic—the Equinoxes, amounting to 56 2-16 seconds per year, or about one degree in 712-3 years, and one constellation sign, 36 degrees, in the course of Liso years, and in 26,000 years the equator will have made a complete revolution. It is termed "Procession of the Equinoxes, which is somewhat misleading, as they
